Local and General

Mrs. L. V. Leitch and family arrived in town on Monday morning last from Edmonton. Mr. and Mrs. Leitch will reside in the house they purchased from L. V. Bliss on Nanton St.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Oneil arrived back from their "Honeymoon" at the coast on Thursday last. Quite a crowd got together on Friday evening and the Oneil ranch was made a gathering place for the merry crowd until the early hours of Saturday morning. The Newly-weds were the recipients of a number of choice presents of the usual variety on such an occasion. We voice the general sentiments in wishing them much happiness in the future.

Mrs. Twyford, Certified Nurse, would take maternity cases.—Apply Graseley's Farm, 4½ miles southwest of Crossfield.

NOTICE.—On and after the 15th of November the price of MILK will be raised to 8 quarts for One Dollar Cream 15 cents for Half-pint.

11 a.m. Morning Prayer and Address by Mr. H. P. O. Savary.

Friday last was visiting day at our local school. Quite a number braved the elements showing they were interested in the school and the education of their children. The various rooms were open to the visitors who seemed to enjoy the proceedings as were the children to have their mothers at school. The teachers would have been more pleased had they seen a few of the male parents present to take in the proceedings. It is intended to have other days thrown open to those interested, perhaps then the men folks will take the opportunity offered them and show they are interested in the welfare of the school and their children.

Subject of Sermon, Sunday Nov. 16th. "The Call of the Cross" The condition of the Greco-Roman world prior to Christ's coming was summed up thus: "The world was growing old, and not even Caesar could make it young again." Where governments failed Christ succeeded; He renewed its youth. "A materialistic philosophy has led the world to the verge of chaos." But Christ is calling us to a divine crusade. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at the close of the regular Service. The Lord's Table is open to all His followers. Reception of New Members.

Education in New World Era

The world upheaval occasioned by the Great War is having its effects not only upon politics and political institutions, finance, trade and commerce, and economics in general, but also upon all social and moral relations. While the great struggle was in progress, and the need for bringing every ounce of power and every item of resource to bear to achieve victory became more and more evident, people began to say that the old world would never again be the same. This, in fact, became a trite saying, and many who made use of it hardly realized just how true it was and how great was the revolution taking place in the world, and which was affecting every phase of individual, community, national and international life.

Remarkable and far-reaching as have been the changes brought about in political life and institutions—and here—in Canada we are only now beginning to realize just how great the change has been, and just beginning to get a glimpse of other and perhaps greater changes which seem impending—in finance, trade and commerce, in science and invention, the greatest change of all has taken place in the sphere of social conditions.

The insistent demands of labor for a new place in the social order; the almost world-wide sweep of the movement against the perpetuation of the legalized liquor traffic; the insistence upon greater attention being paid to the health and physical well-being of the people, more especially of the boys and girls—the need for which was so startlingly exposed by the examinations conducted by the army doctors in connection with the recruiting of the immense armies which modern war called for—these things are even more significant of the new era upon which the world has entered than are those which have to do with what in the past we have been taught to regard as the more material things.

And in the laying of the foundation for, and in the development of, this new social order, the most thoughtful men and women have come to recognize that no one institution will be called upon to play a larger or more important part than the public schools and higher institutions of learning throughout this and all other lands. In every progressive country today, education is receiving the serious attention of the most public-spirited and far-seeing statesmen and leaders in public life.

In Great Britain it has found expression in the most sweeping educational reforms of the last half century or more, and the appropriation of positively staggering sums of money, even at a time when the Old Land is faced with a tremendous national debt and taxation has reached heights hitherto undreamed of.

In Canada a general awakening in regard to matters educational is in evidence in almost every Province, and is most noticeable of all in the Provinces of the West and in old Quebec. The change which is taking place in the latter Province is, perhaps, most significant of all, and has in it all the elements that may yet lead to a closer union between Quebec and the other Provinces and help to eliminate those causes of friction which in the past have so greatly retarded our national life.

One of the most promising movements so far as Canada is concerned was the convening of the recent National Conference on Character Education in Relation to Canadian Citizenship, which was held at Winnipeg, October 20-22, and which was attended by representative men and women in all walks of life from every Province of the Dominion, and at which inspiring and instructive addresses were delivered, not only by prominent Canadians, but by leaders of thought from the United States and Great Britain.

So important does the writer of this column consider this great National Conference to have been at this stage in Canada's history, that he proposes to devote some space to its deliberations in future articles.

For Soldier Settlers

School Lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan Withheld From Sale

Through the intervention of the Soldier Settlement board, school lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan aggregating 432,000 acres, have been withheld from sale by auction in order to be made available for settlement by returned soldiers. Arrangements have been completed to advertise these lands, 2,700 quarter sections in all, for sale by public auction this fall. The lands are situated in the Winnipeg, Brandon, Ashern and St. Rose de Lac districts in Manitoba, and the Canora, Wadena, Prince Albert and Wakaw districts in Saskatchewan. They were selected because of the fact that in these districts this year were good and increased settlement is particularly desirable. The provincial governments concurred in the sale.

NOTHING TO EQUAL BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. Alfred Naud, Natagan River, Que., writes—"I do not think there is any other medicine to equal Baby's Own Tablets for little ones. I have used them for my baby and would use nothing else." What Mrs. Naud says thousands of other mothers say. They have found by trial that the Tablets always do just what is claimed for them. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach, and thus banish indigestion, constipation, colic, colds, etc. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ANNOUNCEMENT

On Sunday November 18th. Mr. H. P. O. Savary K.C. the well known Calgary Barrister will address the congregation of the Church of The Ascension at 11 a.m. on the "Forward Movement". In this great Movement, the religious bodies of the Dominion are co-operating and what Mr. Savary has to say will therefore be of interest to all Christian people. All are heartily invited to be present.

Mrs. B. Furber of Drumheller, late of Crossfield is a visitor in town being the guest of the Editor and Mrs. Whitfield for a few days.

Are we to have a Rink? Or are we not? The weather will decide.

The Ladies Aid of the Union Church are holding a Bazaar and Sale of Cooking, on or about Dec. 15th. and are asking for donations from all the different branches. Do your best to help make this Bazaar a success.

Mr. A. A. Hall was a Calgary visitor on Monday last.

SEE SAMPLES OF PRIVATE CHRISTMAS AND GREETING CARDS at the Chronicle Office before sending out of town.

We noticed Douglas Lee late of the Bank of Commerce staff was in town over the past week-end looking up old friends and acquaintances.

The Rink enthusiasm is running high and if the cold weather prevails we shall all be skating. Operations are proceeding on the Calhoun property west of town and a Hockey Club has been formed, also application has been made to join the League along this north line.

We notice Levi Bone has loaded three cars to be shipped to High Prairie, 1 of horses 1 of cattle and 1 of implements etc.

Mr. S. Hunter was a visitor to Calgary on Friday last to take in the Banquet held in the Board of Trade Rooms as a Re-union of the old C Section, C.A.M.C. and the Boys' of the 8th. Field Ambulance.

Bad Breath? Don't Be Offensive Removes the Cause

Follow This Advice and Your Breath Will Soon Be Sweet and Pure

The bad part of Bad Breath is the fact that nearly every case shows considerable trouble from indigestion, belching gas, bloating, piles or some form of stomach misery. Often more than a pimply face, a sluggish, constipated condition is the true cause of many a man's failure in life. By aiding digestion and building up the weak muscles of the stomach and bowels, DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS completely overcome constipation and all forms of stomach illness.

I was terribly run down with stomach trouble that arose through neglected constipation, writes Mrs. P. D. Quigley, from Washburn, P.O. "I simply couldn't half digest my food. I had dreadful headaches, piles and yellow muddy skin. The effect of DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS was phenomenal. I have gained in weight, have a clear skin, no more headaches, I eat well, sleep well and enjoy my meals."

There is no need to be in failing health when cure is so easy, by taking Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Mandrake and Bitternut. 25c per box, at all dealers. REFUSE A SUBSTITUTE.

THE COW PUNCHER

— BY —
ROBERT J. C. STEAD

Arrangement.

Dave was not long in discovering that his engagement as coachman was a device born of Mr. Duncan's kindness, to enable him to accept instruction without feeling under obligation for it. When he made this discovery, he smiled quietly to himself and pretended not to have made it. Two things were apparent after their first drive: that nothing was further from the minds of Mr. Duncan's bays than anything which called for so much exertion as a runaway, and that, even had they been so disposed, Edith was entirely competent to manage them. The girl had not lived in the foothill town since childhood without becoming something of a horse-woman. But Dave pretended not to know that he was a supernumerary. To have acted otherwise would have seemed ungrateful to Mr. Duncan. And presently the drives began to have a strange attraction of themselves.

When they drove in the two-seated buggy on Sunday afternoons the party usually comprised Mrs. Duncan and Edith young Forsyth and Dave. Mr. Duncan was interested in certain Sunday afternoon meetings. It was Mrs. Duncan's custom to sit in the rear seat, for its better riding qualities, and it had a knack of falling about that Edith would ride in the front seat with the driver. She caused Forsyth to ride with her mother, ostensibly as a courtesy to that young gentleman—a courtesy which, it may be conjectured, was not fully appreciated. At first he accepted it with the good nature of one who feels his position secure, but gradually that good nature gave way to a certain restlessness of spirit which he could not entirely conceal. It became evident that he would have preferred other ways of spending the Sunday afternoons. The parks for instance, or quiet walks through the cottonwoods by the river.

The crisis was precipitated one fine Sunday in September, in the first year of Dave's newspaper experience.

"You will never hide your soul from me;

Dave called early, and found Edith in a riding habit.

"Mother is 'indisposed,' as they say in the society page," she explained. "In other words, she doesn't wish to be bothered. So I thought we would ride today."

"There are only two horses," said Dave.

"Well?" queried the girl, and there was a note in her voice that sounded strange to him. Then, after a pause in which the color slowly rose to her cheeks, "There are only two of us."

"But Mr. Forsyth?"

"He is not here. He may not come. Will you saddle the horses and let us get away?"

It was evident to Dave that, for some reason, Edith wished to evade Forsyth this afternoon. A lover's quarrel, no doubt. That she had a purpose for him, and was revealing it with the utmost frankness, never occurred to his sturdy, honest mind. One of the delights of his companionship with Edith had been that there was a real companionship. None of the limitations occasioned by any acquaintance had narrowed the sphere of the frank friendship he felt for her. She was to him almost as another man, yet in no sense masculine. It seemed rather that her femininity was of such purity that, like the atmosphere he breathed, it surrounded him, flooded him without exciting consciousness of its existence. Save for a certain tender delicacy which her womanhood inspired, he came and went with her as he might have done with a man of his own age. And when she preferred to ride without Forsyth it did not occur to Edith that she preferred to ride with him.

"They were soon in the country, and Edith, leading, swung from the road to a bridge trail that followed the winding of the river. As her graceful figure drifted on ahead it seemed more than ever reminiscent of Reenie Hardy. What rides they had had on those foothill trails! What dippings into the great canyon! What adventures into the spruce forest! And how long ago it all seemed! That was before he started on the paper; before he had been in the grocery business, or in the coal business; back in the long, long past on the ranch in the days before his father died. Life—how it goes! And had it brought to her as many changes as to him? And had it, perhaps, brought to her one change it had not brought to him—a change in the answer about which the near affection clung? This girl, riding ahead, suggestive in every curve and pose of Reenie Hardy. . . . His eyes were burning with loneliness.

He knew he was dull that day, and Edith was particularly charming and vivacious. She conversed him into conversation a dozen times, but he answered absent-mindedly. At length she leapt from her horse and seated herself, facing the river, on a fallen log. Without looking back she indicated with her hand the space beside her, and Dave followed and sat down. For a time they watched the swift water in silence; blue-green where the current ran deeply; tinged with brown glow in the shallows from the gravel underneath.

"You aren't talking today," she said at length. "You don't quite do yourself justice. What's wrong?"

"Oh, nothing," he answered with a laugh, pulling himself together. "This September weather always gets me. I guess I have a streak of Indian; it comes of being brought up on the ranges. And in September, after the first frosts have touched the foliage—" He paused, as though it was not necessary to say more.

"Yes, I know," she said quietly. Then, with a queer little note of confidence, "Don't apologize for it, Dave."

"Apologize?" and his form straightened. "Certainly not. One doesn't apologize for nature, does he?"

"But it comes back in September," he smiled, and she thought the subconscious in him was calling up the smell of fire in dry grass, or perhaps even the rumble of buffalo over the hills. And he knew he smiled because he had so completely misled her.

Presently she took out a pocket volume. "Will you read?" she said. Strangely enough he opened it at the lines:

"Oh, you will never hide your soul from me;

"It was dusk when they started homeward.

Forsyth was waiting for her. Dave scented stormy weather and excused himself early.

"What does this mean?" demanded Forsyth, angrily, as soon as Dave had gone. "Do you think I'll take second place to that—that coal heaver?"

She straightened, and her bright eyes were charged with a blaze which would have astonished Dave, who had known her only in her milder moods. But she tried to speak without passion.

"That is not to his discredit," she said.

"Straight from the corals into good society," Forsyth sneered.

Then she made no pretence of composure. "If you have nothing more to urge against Mr. Elden, perhaps you will go."

Forsyth took his hat. At the door he paused and turned, but she was already ostensibly interested in a newspaper. He went outside the night.

The week was a busy one with Dave, and he had no opportunity to visit the Duncans. Friday Edith called him on the telephone. She asked an inconsequential question about something which had appeared in the paper, and from that the talk drifted on until it turned on the point of their expedition of the previous Sunday. Dave never could account quite clearly how it happened, but when he hung up the receiver he knew he had asked her to ride with him again on Sunday, and she had accepted. He had ridden with her before, of course, but he had never asked her before. She had been a sort of honored employee, whose business it was to comply with her wishes. But this time she would ride at his request. He felt that a subtle change had come over their relationship.

He was at the Duncan house earlier than usual Sunday afternoon, but not too early for Edith. She was dressed for the occasion; she seemed more fetching than he had ever seen her. Those was the bluish of health—or was it altogether the bluish of health—on her cheeks, and a light in her eyes such as he had seen more than once on those last rides with Reenie Hardy. And across her saddle she threw a brown sweater.

She led the way over the path followed the Sunday before until again they sat by the rushing water. Dave had again been filled with a sense of Reenie Hardy, and his conversation was disjunct and uninteresting. She tried unsuccessfully to draw him out with questions about himself; then took the more astute tack of speaking of her own past life. It had begun in an eastern city, ever so many years ago.

Chivalry could not allow that to pass. "Oh, not so very many," said Dave.

"How many?" she teased. "Guess."

He looked judiciously at her latest face. It was a good face to look upon. Perhaps his eyes said as much.

"Nineteen," he hazarded.

"Oh, more than that."

"Twenty-one?"

"Oh, less than that." And their first confidence was established.

W. N. U. 1268

"Twenty," thought Dave to himself. "Reenie must be about twenty now."

"And I was five when—when Jack died," she went on. "Jack was my brother, you know. He was seven, and a great boy for his dandy. Most boys run to their mother with their hurts, but Jack was different. When father was at the office Jack would save up his little hurts until evening."

"Well, we were playing, and I stood on the car tracks, signalling the motorcar, to make him ring his bell. On came the car, with the bell clanging, and the man in blue looking very cross. Jack must have thought I was waiting too long, for he suddenly rushed on the track to pull me off." She stopped, and sat looking at the rushing water. (To be continued.)

No Equinoctial Storms

Scientists oppose the widely held belief that storms always occur at the time of the autumn equinox. The equinox may or may not be coincident with stormy weather, which can reasonably be expected to occur in some parts of the world at any time. The theory that it always does is relegated to the same class as those notions that rain on Easter presages rain on seven succeeding Sundays, a stormy St. Swithin's Day means a dry day with bad weather, and that lumber made from a tree felled in the dark of the moon will become water-rotten.

GEE, BUT IT'S GOOD FOR A BAD COLD

Nothing Can Touch Catarrh-zone in Curing Quickly

You may dislike taking medicine—but coughs are best cured without medicine. The modern treatment is "Catarrhzone"—it isn't a drug—it's a healing vapor full of pine essences and healing balsams. It spreads over the surfaces that are weak and sore from coughing. Every spot that is congested is healed—irritation is soothed away, phlegm and secretions are cleared out, and all symptoms of cold and catarrh are cured. Nothing so quick, nothing so sure, so pleasant. Beware of dangerous substitutes: mean to deceive you for genuine Catarrhzone. Large size which lasts two months, price $1.00; small size 50c; sample size 25c, at all dealers.

Largest Statue in World

It is reported from Japan that there is being carved there the largest statue in the world. It is a recumbent effigy of Nickiren, a Japanese patron saint, cut from a natural granite rock on a hillside in the island of Utsunomiya, or the "Cave of the Head," in the inland sea of Seto. This stone image, it appears, will be 240 feet long, 60 feet between the sleeping Buddha at Segu, Burma, and considerably larger than the Sphinx in Egypt.

Keep Fit For Success In Life

BY DR. A. B. BARBOCK.

You can take your body and by it make anything you like if you can get him under good self-discipline. All roads are open to the man who is strong and fit. Uncle Sam took "our boys"—those slabs, adoped, stooped, hollow-chested youths—and made them vigorous, well-developed, well-set-up and courageous men. Take the right steps. Train yourself and your children to take proper exercise, drink plenty of water and keep the system clean. Your doctor will tell you that anything from a common cold or headache to the most serious illness may result from the absorption of poisons in the intestines.

The first principle is to keep the system clean. Occasionally see that the boy or girl, as well as yourself, has an "intestinal cath." It may be with castor oil or a tiny pill of May-apple, aloe and jalap, which is sold by druggists as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

If a cold starts with a cough and it persists, then some local treatment for this condition should be taken. A well-known alternative extract which has been on the market for a great many years, and which has been highly recommended by thousands of users, is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This tonic compound is composed of an extract of roots and herbs, without alcohol, and has a soothing effect upon the mucous membrane, allays the irritation and at the same time works in the proper and reasonable way, at the seat of the trouble—the stagnated or poisoned blood.

DOCTOR URGED AN OPERATION

Instead I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Was Cured.

Baltimore, Md.—"Nearly four years I suffered from organic troubles, nervousness and head-aches, and every month would have to stay in bed most of the time. Treatment would relieve me for a time but my doctor said I must have an operation. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before consulting to a physician. I took five bottles of it and I am now as well as ever. My sister said me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—NELLIE B. HARRINGTON, 609 Calverton Rd., Baltimore, Md.

It is only natural for any woman to dread a visit to an operation. So many women have been restored to health by this famous remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that an operation has been advised that it will pay any woman who suffers from such ailments to consider trying it before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

Scotland Going Dry

Minister Says Country Will Vote Prohibition in Spring

"Scotland is going dry next year," according to Rev. Dr. J. H. Jowett, who sailed on the Adriatic for England recently, after preaching a month in his former church at the Fifth avenue Presbyterian church, New York.

"It will surprise many," he said, "that I make the assertion that Scotland next year will vote to go dry, for I do not believe it is realized here how far the temperance movement has progressed in the British Isles. A country which has prohibition will become eighty per cent. more efficient than one which has not, and the drink-drunken countries across the sea will have to follow in the footsteps of the United States or fall behind in the economic race."

The New Motor Car

The Greatest Improvement In Riding Comfort Since the Introduction of Pneumatic Tires

HERE is a brand new type of car, built in Canada by Canadians, for Canadians. It solves the problem which has baffled automotive engineers—how to combine riding comfort with light weight and economy.

Our new Three-Point Cantilever Springs make this possible.

These are the first springs of their kind and they are made of chrome vanadium steel. They are exclusive with Overland.

Because of these springs, Overland 4 combines the riding qualities of large, heavy, expensive, long wheelbase cars, together with the advantages and economy of small, light cars.

With 100-inch wheelbase, Overland 4 has the luxurious riding ease of 130-inch Springbase.

The exclusive, Three-Point Cantilever Springs cushion the car so that it rides well on all roads; they reduce choppy rebounds and side swaying, protect the car from road shocks and prolong its life, minimize twisting or racking of frame and body, enable the car to hold the road better.

The car and passengers ride smoothly as though floating, free from road shocks.

But this new riding comfort, possible only with these Three-Point Cantilever Springs, is but one of the advantages of Overland 4.

Its light weight makes possible great economy of gasoline and tires.

High quality materials insure durability. All vital parts of the front axle and steering gear and all highly stressed driving gears and shafts are made of alloy steel.

The equipment list of Overland 4 is like that of expensive cars: Auto-Lite Starting and Lighting System, Electric Horn—Specially Resilient Upholstery Springs—Demountable Rims—Three Speed Transmission—Slanting Rain Vision Windshield—Tillotson Carburetor, and many other high quality conveniences.

In every respect Overland 4 is a quality car. The body is all steel, all enamel, the brightest, hardest, most lasting finish.

Overland 4 has been tested for two years and more than 250,000 miles over the Rocky Mountains, prairies, through deep mud and scorching deserts—through quick, sharp climatic changes. As a result of these tests we were able to judge the car's performance under every condition and to perfect it before offering it to the public.

There is no previous car of any size or price to adequately compare with the character of service Overland 4 introduces.

The farther you ride in it the more you will appreciate it. Come in and get a Booklet. The demand for Overland 4 will be greater than the supply for some time. Overland 4 Touring, $1195; Roadster, $1195; Coupe, $1845; Sedan, $1995. Prices f. o. b. Toronto, War Tax included.

Mea, Men! Try It Tonight— Feel Fine Tomorrow

Simple Way to Get "Pep," To Be Put Right On Your Feet

When a man has lost ambition to "dig in" and stay at things—when he complains of headache, fullness in the right side, pains in the shoulder blade—it's purely a case of "Liver." These symptoms invariably indicate a clogged, inactive liver. The body can't get rid of its wastes, and the whole system is half paralyzed. Dr. Hamilton's Pills stimulate the liver into activity in one night. Acting a mild vegetable laxative, they produce results in a few hours. The bilious headache and constipation are cured, spirits rise, complexion clears, animation returns. Nothing is so calculated so efficient for that tired, lazy feeling as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Very mild, don't interfere with work, invariably do lots of good. Try a 25-box, all dealers.

"That is a good thought," agreed Mr. Duncan, "but not a conclusive one. In reckoning the happiness a man gives we must, of course, subtract the unhappiness he occasions. He may make a great sum of money, and use much of it in creating happiness, but if in the making of the money he used methods that resulted in unhappiness, we must subtract the unhappiness first before we can give him any credit for his happiness he has created. And I am disposed to think that many a philanthropist, if weighed in that balance, would be found to have a debit side bigger than his credit. No matter how much wealth a man may amass, or how wisely he may distribute it, we cannot credit him with success if he has oppressed the hireling or dealt unfairly with his competitors, or the public. Such a man is not a success; he is a failure. In his own soul he knows he is a failure, that is, provided he still has a soul, and if not, as I said before, he is a greater failure still."

Out of this discussion Mr. Duncan evolved the copy line, "The success of a life is in direct proportion to its net contribution to human happiness," and Dave sat writing it far into the night. As soon as Dave had learned to read a little Mr. Duncan took him one day to the public library, and the young man gazed in amazement up and down the great rows of books. Presently a strange sense of inadequateness came over him. "I can never read all of those books, nor half of them," he said. "I suppose one must read them in order to be well informed."

Mr. Duncan appeared to change the subject. "You like fruit?" he asked.

"Yes, of course. Why?"

"When you go into a fruit store do you stand and say, 'I can never eat all of that fruit; crates and crates of it, and carloads more in the warehouse?' Of course you don't. You eat enough for the good of your system, and let it go at that. Now, just apply the same sense to your reading. Read enough to keep your mind fresh and alert, and vigorous; give it one new thought to wrestle with every day, and let the rest go."

Oh, I know that there is a certain school which holds that unless you have read this author or that author, or this book or that book, you are hopelessly uninformed or behind the times. That's literary snobbery. Let them talk. A mind that consumes more than it can assimilate is mostly on a par with a stomach that swallows more than it can digest. Gluttons, both of them. Read as much as you can think about, and no more. The trouble with many of our people is that they do not try to think, but to save themselves the trouble of thinking. The mind, left to itself, insists upon activity. So they chloroform it."

Mr. Duncan also took occasion to speak with Dave about his religious views. He did not forget Dave's explanation of why he went out of the church. "I sympathize with your point of view a great deal," he said, "but don't do so sweeping in your conclusions. The church has many over details; too anxious to fit the mind of man—which is his link with the Infinite—into some narrow, smothering creed, too insistent upon the form of belief and not nearly insistent enough upon conduct. It makes me think of a man who was trying to sell me an automobile the other day. He was explaining all about the trimmings; the cushions and the lights and the horn and all that sort of stuff, and when he was through I said, 'Now tell me something about the motor. I want to know about the thing that makes the wheels go round. If it's no good I guess the trimmings are only fit for junk.' Well, that's the way with the church. The motor that has kept it running for nineteen centuries is the doctrine of love; love of man to man, love of man to God, love of God to man. Nothing about wealth, that's only a back-fence—but love. Without that motor all the trimmings are junk. Each sect has its own trimmings, but they all profess to use the same motor. Still, the motor is all right, even if it is neglected and abused. I don't think you'll find a better, and you must have power of some kind."

"What about Socialism?" asked Dave.

"Very good, insofar as it is constructive. But there is a destructive brand of Socialism which seizes the fancy of disappointed and disgruntled men and women, and bids them destroy. There is a basic quality in all human nature which clamors for destruction. You see it in the child pulling his toys to pieces, or in the mech wrecking buildings. Destruction is easy and passive; constructive demands skill and patience."

"I have been at some of their meetings," said Dave. "They lay great stress on the war between Labor and Capital."

"Between husband and wife in the family of production," interrupted Mr. Duncan. "Nothing is to be gained by that quarrel. I admit the husband has been overbearing, offensive, brutal, perhaps; but the wife has been slovenly, inefficient, shallow. Neither has yet been brought to realize how hopeless is the case of one without the other. And I don't think they will learn that by quarrelling. What they need is not hard words, but mutual respect and sympathy, and an honest conception of what constitutes success. Doctrines and policies are helpful to the extent to which they cause men to think, either directly or by creating a convenient conducive to thought; but they will never bring the golden age of happiness. That can come only through the destruction of selfishness, which can be destroyed only by the power of love. That is why I emphasized the motor in our talk about the church. 'It is our only chance.'"

Dave's talks with Mr. Duncan became almost nightly occurrences, either at the Duncan home, or when he drove the family—for the master of the house often accompanied them—or when they met down town, as frequently happened. And the boy was not slow to realize the broad nature of the task to which Mr. Duncan had set himself. His education was to be built of every knowledge and experience that could go into the rounding of a well-developed life. The climax seemed to be reached when Mr. Duncan invited Dave to accompany him to a dinner at which a noted thinker, just crossing the continent, had consented to speak.

"It will be evening dress," said Mr. Duncan. "I suppose you are hardly fitted out that way."

"I guess not," said Dave, smiling broadly. He recalled the half-burned sarcasm with which the Metford gang referred to any who might be seen abroad in their "Herford frocks." He had a sudden vision of himself running the gamut of the ridicule.

But Mr. Duncan was continuing. "I think I can fix you up," he said. "We must be pretty nearly of a size, and I have a spare suit." And almost before he knew it he was arranged that Dave should attend the dinner.

It was an eventful night for him. His shyness soon wore off, for during these months he had been learning to accept any new experience gladly. "Life is made up of experience," his teacher had said, "therefore welcome every opportunity to broaden your life by travelling in new tracks. There are just two restrictions—the injurious and the immoral. You must grow by experience, but be sure you grow the right way. Only a fool must personally see the red iron to see if it will burn. . . . But most of us are fools." And as he sat among this company of the best minds of the town he felt that a new and very real world was opening before him. His good clothes seemed to work up in some way through his sub-consciousness and give him a sense of capability. He was in the mental atmosphere of men who did things, and by conforming to their customs he had brought his mind into harmony with theirs, so that it could receive suggestions, and—also knows?—return suggestions. And he was ready to think, think, think.

As he walked home with Mr. Duncan under the stars he spoke of the subtle sense of well-being and ability which came with good clothes. "I don't mind confessing I have always had something like contempt for 'style' dressing," he said. "Now I almost feel that there's something to it."

"There is some good quality in everything that survives," said Mr. Duncan. "Otherwise it would not survive. That doesn't mean, of course, that the good qualities outweigh the bad, but the good must be there. Take the use of liquor, for instance; perhaps the greatest source of misery we have. Yet it touches a quality in man's life: sociability, conviviality, if you like; but a quality that has virtue in it none the less. And the errors of sex are so often linked with love that one can scarcely say where virtue ceases and where vice begins. I know convention places them plainly enough, but convention does not make virtue vice, nor vice virtue. There are deeper laws beneath, and sometimes they may set at defiance all accepted codes."

"Yet I would not quarrel with the accepted codes—until I knew I had something better. Accepted codes represent a net progress through experience to truth. The code, for instance, 'Thou shalt not kill,' we accept it in general, but not completely. The State does not hesitate to kill in self-defence, or even to carry out purposes which have no relation to defence. And shall we not allow similar exceptions to the other codes? And yet, although we may find they are not infallible, are they not still the best guides we have?"

"To return to clothes. Clothes won't make you, but they will help you to make yourself. Only, don't become a clothes-tripper. You can run to intoxication on fine raiment as well as on fine wines. It has a virtue in it, but just beyond its virtues lies the vice."

CHAPTER EIGHT.

The summer was not far gone when Dave, through an introduction furnished by Mr. Duncan, got a new job. It was in the warehouse of a wholesale grocery, trundling cases and sacks of merchandise. It was cleaner than handling coal, and the wages were better—fifty dollars a month, to begin.

"The first thing is to get out of the dead-line," said Mr. Duncan. "I am not hoping that you will have found destiny in a wholesale warehouse, but you must get out of the dead-line. As long as you shovel coal you will shovel coal. And you are not capable of anything better until you think you are."

"But I've liked it pretty well," said Dave. "As long as I was just working for my wages it was all going, but it was different after I got to see that even shovelling coal was worth while. I suppose it is the same with

Middle Aged Women

Are Here Told the Best Remedy for Their Troubles.

Freemont, O.—"I was passing through the critical period of life, being forty-six years of age and had all the symptoms incident to that change—heat, flashes, nervousness, and was in a general run-down condition, so it was hard for me to do my work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me as the best remedy for my troubles, which it surely proved to be. I feel better and stronger every day since taking it, and the annoying symptoms have disappeared."—Mrs. M. GORDON, 925 Napoleon St., Fremont, Ohio.

Drury is Chosen Premier of Ontario

Toronto.—E. C. Drury is to be the next premier of Ontario, succeeding Sir William Hearst. Mr. Drury was the unanimous choice of the Farmers of Ontario and Labor representatives in the new legislature, at a joint conference at the U.F.O. headquarters.

It is understood that the meeting was very harmonious and that there was an indication of the two groups pulling well together in the house, though both the U.F.O. and Labor will retain their group feature to a considerable extent.

Premier-elect Drury said that the new government was practically completed, that all the portfolios had been allocated, and that the government would be ready on short notice to take over the reins from Sir William Hearst and his ministers.

The policy of the United Farmers so far as it has been definitely agreed upon is outlined in an address given by Mr. Drury after his selection. In this he stated that one of the first acts of the new government would be to carry out the mandate of the people of the province on prohibition, as declared in the recent referendum vote, and Mr. Drury expressed himself as in complete sympathy with this mandate. He pointed out that the U.F.O. had waged war on special privileges, and this policy would be continued, he said.

He intimated that the new government would not stand for any class legislation. In his address, Mr. Drury said he realized that the bed upon which he had been placed is likely to have more thorns than feathers in it. "I do not, however, entertain any fears regarding this situation," he said. "It is true we may be lacking in experience, but the situation is not one which calls for the fine arts of the politician."

The new leader added: "It is too early to speak of our legislative program. We have not yet been called upon to form a government, and it would be unwise to anticipate. We can, however, lay down certain broad principles which must and should govern us in the matter. Our war in the past has been waged on special privilege.

"We are not at this time going to abandon the principle of justice and fair play which have actuated us in the past.

"If we are called to power we must stand for no class legislation of whatever kind. Our legislative program must be framed for the benefit of every just and honest and legitimate interest in the province. If, in the carrying out of such a program the unjust and dishonest interests get in the way, so much the worse for the latter."

War on Illiteracy

An Americanization bill to wipe out illiteracy in the United States, was reported on favorably by the senate labor committee. The bill would appropriate $12,500,000 a year.

The Sugar Shortage

Licenses to Export Sugar Cancelled By Canadian Trade Commission Ottawa.—No export licenses of sugar from Canada are being issued, and old contracts which called for the shipment of sugar to the United States have been cancelled by the Canadian trade commission, it was learned. Export of sugar along the border points, which has been permitted to some extent in the past, has also been stopped, despite the many hundreds of requests for sugar being received by the trade commission.

At the office of the commission it was stated that if care is exercised by the consumers, there is sufficient sugar in Canada for domestic use, providing there are no strikes or transportation tie-ups.

Canada is one of the best situated countries in the world in this respect, it was stated.

Held Prisoner by Ice

Aviators Will Try to Rescue Man Frozen In

Winnipeg.—To rescue a man frozen in the north country without supplies, Capt. Cuffe, late of the R.A.F., one of the local aviators, and J. D. Perrin have left by airplane.

J. B. Tirrell, a well-known geologist and consulting engineer for a mining company, who has been surveying holdings in the Rice Lake district, as a result of the early freeze up has been held prisoner in the north land.

The lake was so frozen round the edges that several attempts made to get boats in proved unsuccessful.

Hurrah! How's This

Cincinnati authority says corn dry up and lift out with fingers.

Hospital records show that every time you cut a corn you invite lockjaw or blood poison, which is needless, says a Cincinnati authority, who tells you that a quarter ounce of a drug called freezone can be obtained at little cost from the drug store, and is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You simply apply a few drops of freezone on a tender, aching corn and soreness is instantly relieved. Apply the entire corn can be lifted out, root and all, without pain.

This drug is sticky, but dries at once and is claimed to just shrivel up any corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or if your wife wears high heels she will glide to know of this.

A Unique Move

Commercial Travellers to Use British Warships

London.—British commercial travellers and the representatives of business houses are to be permitted passage aboard every British warship leaving the country for abroad. This, according to Sir Hamar Greenwood, under-secretary for home affairs, who made the announcement before the association of British chambers of commerce, is "a move unique in the history of the empire."

Proportional Representation Winnipeg.—A bill providing for proportional representation for Winnipeg will be introduced in the next session of the provincial legislature, it is stated. Winnipeg would be the only district affected, as the city constituencies are the only ones for which there are more than one member.

Italy Appeals to United States London.—Diplomats here assert that another strong appeal has been addressed to the United States by Signor Tittoni, Italian foreign minister, regarding the Fiume situation. It is added that the British and French governments are using their good offices to ease the rather critical situation.

W. N. U. 1289

Turkish Question For N.w. Conference

Entente Representatives Are Persuaded U.S. Will Not Voluntarily Accept Mandate

Paris.—The entente representatives in the peace conference apparently are persuaded that the United States will not voluntarily accept any mandate in the Near East, and it now seems assured that the Turkish question will not be touched by the present peace conference, but will probably be taken up by another conference to be held within a few months. There is much speculation as to where the conference for the division of Turkey is to be held. It will probably not be in Paris. The suggestion of Geneva has not met with great favor, as it is not regarded as a good place for a winter conference, and it is believed that Turkey must be disposed of before spring.

To Relieve Distress

Preparations Being Made in U.S. to Cope With Strike Situation

Washington.—The government, confronted with the refusal of the miners' organization to call off the strike of a half-million soft coal workers, has moved swiftly to protect the people from great distress.

First of many steps to deal with a situation admittedly critical probably will be these:

"Ample police or other protection for miners willing to remain on the job as urged by President Wilson.

Revival of the fuel administration, armed with full war-time powers to prevent hoarding and profiteering.

"Allocation and distribution of coal to homes, railroads and industries.

"Efforts to bring the strike to a speedy end through mediation.

"The government, however, will make no effort to bring about indictment of officers of the United Mine Workers of America, who called the strike, on charges of conspiracy to reduce production of a necessary product.

Sugar Rations to Candy-Makers

Washington.—Rationing of sugar to manufacturers of candy, soft drinks and the like is soon to be suggested by the sugar equalization board, a house war investigating committee was told by Herbert Hoover, former federal food administrator. This step by the board, Mr. Hoover said, resulted from the fact that "raw sugar has risen beyond the point where it can be bought advantageously for the housewife."

Germany May Not Hand Over Ships

Berlin.—The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says semi-officially that the reply of the German government to the note from the supreme council at Paris, demanding the surrender of German ships sold to Holland during the war, will probably be in the negative. The note will declare that the government is unable to endorse the legal arguments of the entente that the sale of these ships, which are now in German waters, was invalid.

Canada Wants Place On Governing Body

Alleged Evasion Of Immigration Law

Claim that Hutterites Get Into Canada By Automobiles

Winnipeg.—Finding it a difficult job getting into Manitoba from the United States by train, Hutterites, it is alleged, are trying to outwit the immigration authorities by entering in automobiles. Reports to this effect were submitted at a meeting of the central branch of the Great War Veterans' association, with a result that a resolution was unanimously passed calling the attention of the federal government to the matter and urging it to take immediate steps to see that the regulations prohibiting the entry of Hutterites into Manitoba were not evaded in what was described as this astute way.

To Solve Fiume Question

France and Britain Are Again Trying to Bring About Settlement of Problem

Paris.—Efforts of France and England are again being brought into play to bring about a solution of the Italian-American difficulties over the settlement of the Fiume problem, according to the Liberte.

The newspaper reports that the American opposition to the modified Italian proposals is unchanged and that the response of Secretary of State Lansing is in the negative.

Premier Clemenceau received Foreign Minister Tittoni.

To Withdraw British Troops

London.—Andrew Bonar Law, government leader in the House of Commons, announced that the government was arranging with France and Prince Feisal, son of the King of the Hedjaz, for the immediate withdrawal of the British troops from Syria and the assumption of the duties of occupation by the French and Arabs, pending the conclusion of the peace treaty.

Heavy Potato Loss in Manitoba

Winnipeg.—Manitoba has sustained a loss of about 2,800,000 bushels of potatoes, frozen in the ground, which at market prices today, $1.25 per bushel, means a loss of $3,500,000 and represents a loss of from 30 to 40 per cent. of the entire crop. Dealers say there will be a serious shortage in the province this winter.

Argentina to Hand Over War Ships

Buenos Ayres.—The six German merchant ships which took refuge in Argentine ports during the war will be delivered to the allies in good condition. This decision is the result of diplomatic negotiations extending over several months to determine the fate of the interned steamers.

Melons Grown in the West

George Merrick, head of the Merrick-Anderson company, who for years before the war and ever since has been a most earnest advocate of greater production, is very proud of the fine muskmelons which he grew this year at Old-England, near Selkirk. He believes that in years to come a very large proportion of the market gardening for the city of Winnipeg will be done in the light, warm, sandy soil in the region near the town of Selkirk, where conditions are very favorable. The picture shows samples of the melon crop of this season, said to be equal to those of Montreal.

Washington.—Canada has filed a formal protest against the proposed composition of the governing body of the international labor office to be established under the League of Nations. The point at issue is regarded by the Canadian delegation here as of the greatest moment. It involves the right of Canada, by reason of her industrial importance, to name one of the members of the governing body rather than to take her chance of election as one of the nations of lesser importance, from the industrial point of view.

The international labor office (which will be controlled by the governing body), forms part of the permanent organization created to further application of the labor principles embodied in the peace treaty. Its governing body is to consist of 24 members. Twelve will represent the governments, six will be selected by the employers and six by the international labor conference, six by workers' delegates to the conference. Of the twelve government representatives, eight will be nominated by the members of the conference which are of chief industrial importance.

The remaining four will be nominated by the other government delegates to the congress. The governing body will consist of 24 members, comprising eight nations are of industrial importance, and therefore empowered each to name a representative on the governing body.

The organizing body of the labor conference has reported in favor of the following:

United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Japan, Switzerland and Spain.

If German delegates are admitted to the conference, Germany, by reason of her industrial importance, will be entitled to a seat on the governing body, and Spain being at the end of the list will cease to be numbered among the eight.

Now the position taken by Canada is that she should rank as one of the eight nations of "chief industrial importance." And to that end has deposited a protest. The Dominion government holds that she is entitled to be regarded on the grounds:

- (1) Of population.
- (2) Of relative industrial importance.

When the council of the League of Nations convenes, and this is expected shortly, Canada's protest will be one of the first questions for education.

Navy Must Retain Strength

Beatty Says Nation Would Fall to Ground Unless Sea Force Is Maintained

London.—Earl Beatty, the new first sea lord, speaking here, declared that while public economy was essential, our vast lines of communication were as important as before the war, and the navy was our insurance for maintaining them. The League of Nations was a serious hope for relieving us of some of that insurance, which he hoped might be fulfilled, but the navy made us into a strong man armed, and without it the Empire would fall to the ground.

Alberta In Need Of Stockbreeders

Dr. Dugan McEachern, of Montreal, and Ormstown, who has been on a visit to the New Walrod ranch, 100 miles south of Calgary, of which he is the president, gave an interview to a Calgary paper, in which, he says:

"Like all others interested, I was naturally anxious about the stock of the country when the alarming reports appeared in the eastern papers, and although we have had on hand very few cattle or horses during the last eight years, the reports received by me for a time were not encouraging until rain came, when they were more hopeful.

"I arrived at the ranch the 25th of September in summertime weather, and that night a snowstorm fell, piling up four or five inches of snow, which, being followed by fine weather, brought forth abundance of vegetation and green grass. I visited most of the stock and found Mr. Burns' men gathering calves and fat cows, which gave me a good opportunity to observe the condition of the stock.

"Extraordinary as it may seem, I have never before seen horses and cattle on that or any other range in better flesh. The cattle were in such good condition that old cows brought $89 and calves $24. The horses, registered Clydes and Shires, and saddle horses, were quite fat, which speaks wonders for the extraordinarily nutritive qualities of the short, dry, bunch-grass on which stock fatten as well as when fed on hay and on oats or meals of any sort.

"If the rain or snow had come a month earlier this year than it did, there would have been no need for anxiety about winter fodder. I feel convinced that there is not in all America any soil or climate in which fertility and growth is more prolonged than in Southern Alberta. When I left Walrod the oats were becoming green and grass was commencing to grow in an astonishing way, owing to the moisture from the melting snow.

"I wish that special inducements could be made to bring experienced dairymen and women, mixed farmers and stockbreeders to help develop these industries in Southern Alberta, especially the dairymen of the shore. Alberta, as a province, must promote and encourage these branches of agriculture by constructing adequate rail and barge roads. Much has been done in this direction, but much more is urgently needed."

North Sea Trawlers

Their Great Work in Peace and War

"The northeast coast of Scotland is a pacific climate, as compared with the Atlantic coast, and the weather is as bright land on the west," writes William Elliot Griffiths in "Bonnie Scotland and What We Owe Her," and he goes on later in the same chapter to speak of the trawlers of the North Sea.

At Aberdeen "twenty-five millions of dollars' worth of food is extracted annually through the fisheries in the deeper waters, which have been improved, first by the method of beam trawling, begun in 1882, and then by the steam line fishing in 1889."

"How full the North Sea is of these trawlers those who have seen them and kept pace with the efforts of philanthropists to minister to the needs of the men on board the ships. In recent years we have learned, moreover, how soon, in time of war, these toilers of the deep are called upon to show their courage as well as their industry, and have thus realized the danger ever surrounding these modest heroes. In the world war of 1914-18, the trawlers have not only caught fish, but in their new capacity as mine-sweepers, have kept the North Sea measurably free."

"The owl has no motion in the eyes the globe of which is immovably fixed in its socket by a strong, elastic, hard, cartilaginous case, but in order to compensate for the absence of motion in the eye, the owl is able to turn its head round in almost a complete circle without moving its body."

Prices Are Also Soaring in Japan

Nations All Over The World Sympathize With Each Other

In the Yoron, a paper of Tokio, appeared the other day a cartoon very like cartoons that are appearing in papers in other parts of the world. It depicted an everyday Japanese citizen who had just landed safely on a floating buoy, evidently in pursuit of a bowl of rice which was just one buoy ahead of him in a series stretching across the picture. "The harassed family man," said the caption, "no sooner lands safely on the Buoy of increased Pay in the River of Life than the Cost-of-Living Bowl flies away and settles on the next Buoy of Higher Prices." Thus Japan finds herself in the same economic fix as other nations, and to quote Mr. Hamaguchi the other day in the Japanese Diet, "the high cost of living threatens the livelihood of the majority of the nation." The figures given out state that as compared with August, 1918, the cost of rice just before the rice riots last spring had risen by 9.1 per cent, sugar by 34.5 per cent, miso by 21.1 per cent, soy by 11.7 per cent, imitation nankeens by 42.6 per cent, and coal by 8.2 per cent. Since the rice riots prices have continued to climb, and report has it that about 30 newspapers have been suppressed by the government for "expressing incendiary thoughts on the subject of rice." Bad as the high cost of living is, it seems as if there should be some light in the situation in so far as it makes the citizens of all nations all over the world sympathize with each other because they are all in the same boat.

Finding Lost Cities

Detailed Outline Was Shown in an Air Photograph

Air photography announces the great part which it is going in the future to play in archaeological research by the revelation made by its means of a long forgotten city lying buried in the neighborhood of Samarra. For long centuries the presence of this city has been undreamed of, until the day came when its detailed outline, with traces of walls, foundations, public gardens, was shown in an air photograph, though not visible to anyone on the ground. The city is older than the Christian era and was probably the home of several million people.

Colonel Beazley unfolded this subject of air photography at a meeting of the British Association in connection with the survey work in Mesopotamia during the war. A letter recently reached the Royal Geographical Society from Sir Aurel Stein in Kashmir also putting forward the extraordinary usefulness of air photography in archaeology. Sir Aurel said that many times when searching for the remains of ancient civilizations in the deserts of Central Asia, he has longed for the means of obtaining a view of the ground from an adequate height. From the relatively small height of an isolated clay terrace in the Tianshan desert, at the western end of the Great Wall of China, he was able to recognize the ramparts once enclosing a border castle, the lines of which were most difficult to trace on the spot, the ground being covered with reeds and scrub. But for the objection of carrying a load he would have taken a man-carrying kite with him on his third expedition.

Though the difficulty of supplies for a time may delay the use of airplanes in Central Asia, Sir Aurel Stein is certain that work might be done in India in discovering ancient sites hidden by jungle overgrowth.

When a woman is unable to say anything nice to a man she tries to make up for it by saying he comes from a good family.

Too often there is a sting back of honeyed words.

The Story of The Crosses

Tale of Gallant Attack By Canadians Told in Eloquent Language

On the road from Bapaume to Albert there is written the story of the crosses. The tale of a gallant attack by the Canadians is told in the eloquent language of the rude little wooden markings of the graves of brave men.

With the legend, "Their names shall live forever more," they top the hill, almost bashfully, and then gain in numbers flood the valley below, finally thinning out again until they lose themselves in the old German line which was wrested from the enemy at great cost.

Searching for the grave of her brother who fell in the attack, a Red Cross nurse was able to read the story of this action as told by the crosses. Mute but appealing they stand telling their tale and giving the details of how every foot of that field had been won in blood.

The men had been buried as they fell, so the story remains unmarked by the censor's pencil, although at the time, the spring was beginning to soften the lines, tone down the horrors of the slaughter and blot out some of the rude scars.

The Canadians had occupied the side of a hill. Looking across the valley they could see the German line sinister, and stretching cynic-like across the face of the hill opposite. That line had to be captured at any cost.

The early morning struggle was sharp and furious—the crosses say. In front of the Canadian lines they are scattered and in groups, marking the places where high explosive shells fell and gallant fellows got but a few yards in the charge before being picked up in the whirlwind of death.

Down into the valley they trickle until they gain in numbers at the beginning of the ascent of the second hill where they are marshalled in one great mass. Their horizontal barbed wire and trenching tools, and with arms outstretched, beseeching a wonderful world to gaze upon their heroism and not to forget the deeds that were theirs in the struggle for freedom.

They thin out again as they mount the ascent towards the German lines. Right to the very lips of the enemy trench they go—there were some of the attackers who had charged across the shell torn field, full just as they were about to leap into the enemy's lines and the arms of victory.

There today stands the story of the crosses on the road from Bapaume to Albert, more moving and eloquent than any page of history that can ever be written of the engagement.

The red poppies are shouldering their way up between them, blushing crimson as though they, the hand-craft of the Master Mind, are mean and scar in the company of such a brilliant and dazzling throng.

Beneath their outstretched arms deep many valorous bows of the land of the maple, who in lying left behind them their indelible mark upon the nation—and the story of the crosses—their crosses. "Their names shall live forever more."

A Literal Sky Pilot

Will Use Airplane to Reach People in Mountains

The circuit rider and sky pilot of old are giving place to a modern and more literal sky pilot, who promises to take up their work and carry it on more widely than they could ever have hoped. Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, of Frankfort, Kentucky, chairman of the Literacy Commission of her state, arrived in New York recently to purchase an airplane, which, she announced, would be the first of a fleet to carry on the work of the commission. There are many people in mountain fastnesses whom it has been impossible to reach even with automobiles or mules, she said; hence the airplanes, by which, it was thought, the whole territory in which the commission is interested could be covered in one-twentieth of the time now required.

Lord Fisher On The Naval Policy

Explorer Drifting To North Pole

Amundsen May Make Final Dash In Airplane

Bound for the North Pole, Roald Amundsen, Norwegian discoverer of the South Pole, is at present drifting in his ice locked schooner, the Maud, somewhere north of Western Siberia, according to belief held by the Seattle Norwegian vice-consulate and Vilhjalmer Stefansson, Canadian Arctic explorer.

In planning the trip the explorer said he expected after reaching the pole to return either to Grant Land, west of Greenland, or Melville island, which lies in the Arctic ocean north of Canada. Should he reach Melville Island, he probably would journey by sea to Nome Alaska, or overland to Dawson Yukon Territory.

Two airplanes, it is believed, formed part of the Maud's equipment when she left Norway last fall, and sailed through the White Sea bound for the icy north. The final dash to the pole may be made in one of the planes. Amundsen, it is believed, may also fly back to civilization in one of the machines.

Nothing has been heard from Amundsen since September 1, 1918, more than a year ago. At that time the Maud was reported taking off for her last voyage, a White Sea point. After taking off she sailed northeast into the rapidly freezing water of the Arctic Ocean.

At the New Siberian Islands, it was believed, the drift would carry the boat toward, if not across, the pole. Amundsen intended to use the airplanes if he found the drift would not carry him across the "top of the earth."

Amundsen in a degree followed the footsteps of his countryman, Fridtjof Nansen. In 1895-1896 Nansen in the Fram started on a drift across the pole, but left his boat and tried unsuccessfully to reach the goal on foot. Later the Fram drifted as close to the pole as Nansen got.

The Maud carries wireless sending apparatus, but no receiving instruments. Amundsen said he would not install the receiving apparatus because he did not want to be worried by news from the outside world.

The Province of Manitoba

Some Very Interesting Statistics Showing Potential Possibilities

The province of Manitoba has a superficial area of 251,832 square miles, the approximate land area being 147,150 square miles, of which only eight per cent was occupied in 1918. The total municipal debt was $57,420,912, while the assessment of the province reaches the respectable figure of $554,219,362.

The population of the province of Manitoba at the census in 1916 was 553,860. The population today is probably in the neighborhood of 600,000.

The capital city is Winnipeg, population 225,000. The centre of the nerve system of the west.

The value of the manufactures of Manitoba in 1918 was $61,594,184.

In addition to several demonstration farms throughout the province, there is a well equipped and up-to-date Agricultural College in the outskirts of Winnipeg.

The system of telephones is owned and operated by the government of Manitoba, and fifty thousand city and rural telephones are in operation.

The province of Manitoba is especially suited to mixed farming. Vast areas of northern lands contain all the requirements of the stock-raiser, the dairy farmer and the vegetable grower.

The fisheries of Lake Manitoba, Lake Winnipeg and other great lakes in the northern lands are of great value. Much of the fish consumed in the province is provided by Lake Winnipeg alone.

Lake Winnipeg, in its superficial area, is nearly, if not quite, as large as Lake Superior, though, of course, it is neither so deep nor so important a lake.

As the world in all human likelihood will have a respite from war on a large scale for a considerable period to come, the question of army and navy power during the peace period has inevitably been raised. In Britain, Lord Fisher has thrown a bombshell into the discussion on the navy by advocating the reduction of the estimates from the $700,000,000 proposed to a modest $140,000,000 and the immediate scrapping of one-half of the present fleet. As for the other half, he cynically adds that it will be equally useless in a very few years. This radical counsel was eagerly seized upon by the little Englishers as evidence that the dogmatic and bellicose admiral was of their way of thinking. Their attempt to measure him by their standard failed, for Lord Fisher a retort not less emphatic. "If some congenial idiot," he wrote, "imagines that I should cease all shipbuilding—well, he is the stupidest man that was born."

Lord Fisher is a conspicuous specimen of the man who never grows old. He is as receptive to new discoveries and developments as ever, and he is identified with the British navy as a modern instrument of war. Most of the early troubles in Britain during the war arose from the pig-headed conservatism of the old school of soldiers and seamen who could not bring themselves or be induced to believe that anything novel could be valuable. Lord Fisher is not of that stamp, for the reason of his scrapping and reduced expenditure counsel is his belief that sea supremacy in the future lies with the development of submersible craft and the internal combustion engine. Airships and airplanes, he perceives, will drive all surface warships off the seas, thus rendering submersibles a necessity. Lord Fisher is not a prophet whose forecasts have been discredited, and therefore cannot now be dismissed with contempt—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

The Uses Of Plywood

One Is to Cover Walls With Durable Wood Paneling

If it had not been for the construction of airplanes, the idea that steel is stronger than wood, under any and all circumstances, might have remained indefinitely unquestioned. The "twelve times stronger than steel" is a product of the United States Forest Products Laboratory, and the first airplane wing-rigid made of it weighed 693 ounces and sustained a load of 109 pounds, as against the load of 91 pounds sustained by a steel wing rib weighing 7.9 ounces. Since then wood has been made to do even better, as the lightest and strongest material for airplane frames. One calls it plywood, and its secret is revealed when one realizes that an ordinary toothpick, although easy to break, is harder to pull apart by tension than a steel wire of the same length and weight. Plywood is made by cutting a piece of wood into thin panels, and then gluing the panels together so that the grain of one panel runs at right angles to the grain of another, and the strength of the toothpick, so to speak, is made to hold good in two directions. It may seem without much thought that peace has many other uses for plywood than making airplane frames; it is said to be to cover walls with beautiful and durable wood paneling.

Italy Wants Mandate

New Candidate in Field for Control of Turkey

The possibility that Italy may be a candidate for the mandate over Turkey under the League of Nations is being considered in Constantinople political and commercial circles, particularly in view of the great efforts that the Italians are making to establish themselves in a banking and commercial way in Turkey. Discussion of the subject is based largely upon the supposed suitability of the Italians to live in the Turkish climate and the need which the Italians have for an outlet for the enterprises—and for a "place in the sun."

Economy of Ford Service

WEAR is unavoidable even in the best car, but certain parts wear out more quickly than others. There is no need of scrapping your car because the piston rings have seen their day, because the platinum points of the vibrators are worn out. Probably the rest of the car is as good as new.

Medical men agree that the human body is renewed, cell by cell, every seven years. You can do the same with your Ford Car and prolong its life at minimum cost by replacing worn parts from time to time.

Ford service has been the means of doubling the lives of hundreds of Ford Cars, and cutting down the cost of motoring. The fact that a Ford Touring Car, which costs $690, f. o. b. Ford, Ont., can be purchased part by part separately for $917 is ample proof of the economy of driving a Ford Car.

It will pay you to have your car overhauled during the winter months. 700 Canadian Dealers and over 2,000 Service Garages supply genuine Ford parts and prompt repair service.

When buying, choose a Ford, and take advantage of the economy of Ford service.
